Tempus fugit — how do I convince my students that time goes so fast that they will one day sit and say to me or someone else — “Where did the time go?” or “Boy, (or Girl) do I wish I had it to do over again.” What method shall I try this year — to convince my freshman football players that they will be seniors looking to college before they can blink an eye — to tell my classes to prepare daily for their enjoyable lessons — to get my senior basketballers and tennis players to send out their college applications — or, most difficult of all, to get my first period students to make class on time at least just prior to marks.

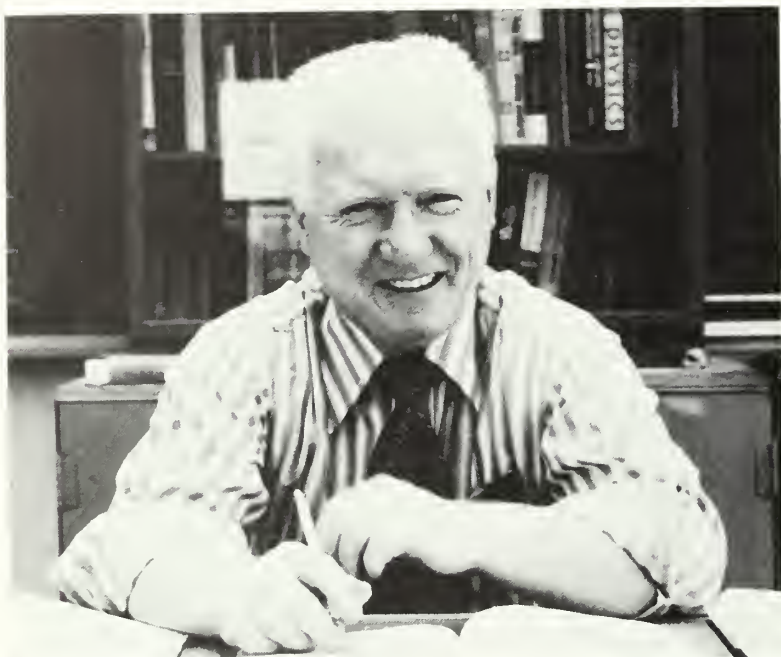

The quickness of the Cycle is awesome for all to behold — all the new faces to which to attach names and never make a mistake — the start of another trek through the big blue notebook — another frosh football team to coach and the concurrent sadness to know that some of these interesting and sensitive people will be spoiled by success and their classmates and become the big-mouthed showoff senior jocks that plague the school and give the good athletes, yes there are many you don't see, a bad image — to know that some will become the never — take — off — your — coat — in — school rats at war with the school while still others will become so enamored of themselves they can't see anyone else in the school — but there is the contentment in knowing that some will remain conscious of other's feelings and will never stoop to yelling obscenities at their classmates who are attempting to perform academically, musically, dramatically or even athletically — The joy that I might be able to influence a few more of the new faces from my classes and teams to show consideration for the feelings of their friends although hampered by the present age of love and kindness — What? Me sarcastic? good heavens, tain't so — The quietness of the holidays as we begin the stretch run for the seniors — and the Pain — the pain in dealing a D or an F to someone I like but who will not use their God-given talents — the pain of cutting people from teams and knowing I may have made an irreparable error, that they will never know the joy and comraderie of group efforts and cohesive undertakings that make many people ONE — the pain of watching students berate students as rats, jocks, or brains when the real problem is that they don't know each other — the pain that comes in that final swing of the cycle when I see all those New faces now Old and familiar leaving in June and knowing that I will see few of them again — that I will never know how they made out or where they are or if any of the philosophy, never mind the chemistry, with which I devulged them was of any value to them — the pain of seeing students waste their untouched talents because they won't believe me when I say Tempus Fugit — but the joy of thinking that in September there will be more and maybe they can be inspired to climb the heights and take others with them and not degrade but elevate our scholastic society to new levels of true love and kindness and then the loneliness of June and the new memories will be much less Painful and saddening but rather full of the hope of things to come. I love you all.

In the Pursuit of Confusion, turmoil, tension — the grind. Homework, responsibility, busy pursuit of ... A letter? A stamp on performance from A — D. A job well done ... lessons learned, material absorbed or forgotten. Computers buzzing — letters and numbers. Measured learning, presence counted, numbers totaled of times the body appeared.

Uniform timing of movement and thought. Bells ring for warmup and ... they're off and running to the next encounter with — Reality?

Pain and echoing laughter — hall way punches ... affectionate jabs. Reminders of sharing. Quiet, absorbing thought ... exchanges behind glass windowed doors ... teacher to pupil ... mind to mind. Those moments of brightness when worlds fuse and thoughts embrace to touch the strange beauty of all we are together — moving, judging, objecting, wandering. Awe struck by the passage of time and the beauty of growth. The sadness of escape.

The class of 1974 holds dear memories for me; for, it was with some of its members that I initiated my teaching career at Arlington High School. This first student encounter is of great personal significance to me because it marked the beginning of a most rewarding pedagogical experience, a communion of ideas, and an evolution of personal attitudes.

In addition to providing basic linguistic skills in French and Italian, I feel that my role as a language teacher exceeds this evident scope. What I hope to have encouraged are the seeds of international tolerance by nurturing a respect for the societal mores and historical background of cultures other than our own. If this "attitude" will perhaps help you as you "evolve" and make your contributions to humanity, I am grateful for having been given the opportunity to guide you.

May all your endeavors be wholesome and successful and may your fondest dreams become reality.

This year the Gilbert & Sullivan Club took on a new and lively aspect of musical theatre. A childrens' musical was added to the usually unique presentation of the spring musical.

It was decided to commence our childrens' musical production with; "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown". We felt it was greatly accepted by people of all ages.

This year our spring musical was How to Succeed In Business Without Really Trying. With the talents of Mr. Smith and Mr. Roberts, as well as the efforts of Mr. Laber, the show took on quite a professional look.

To everyone's constant amazement, the club's membership continued to grow and grow. The interest in this type of theatre has prompted our directors to try to accomplish the amazing task of including up to 200 people in our musical.

Everyone agrees that this has definitely been the best year yet. There were more opportunities this year to experience musical theatre, than ever before.

SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club, now in its fifteenth year at Arlington High School, serves to expose interested students to the several diverse areas of science such as medicine, biological research, oceanography, ecology, and animal behavior. In order to fulfill such goals, the club goes on various field trips, invites guest lecturers to address the group and initiates science oriented activities for the community. In order to keep such activities going, the club sponsors car washes, bake sales, and has provided refreshments for the home basketball games. Five years ago, a science and math teaching program was initiated by the club for the elementary schools. This activity became so popular that it was incorporated into the science department curriculum. Two years ago, a recycling deposit center was set up for bottles and cans. The science club also sponsors a science fair each year for the elementary, junior high, and senior high schools. Individual students and groups of students submit exhibits which are on display to the townspeople. Judges are on hand and the best projects are awarded.

It was open to anybody interested in Italian people, food and customs but mostly in having fun. Mrs. Cozza was our great faculty advisor. This year's activities included: A Christmas party, dinner at an Italian restaurant, a bake sale, trips to the North End, more parties, a soccer game, "Il Padr-

We organized a Christmas fair in which the club members and art students could display or sell their work. We hope to have a similar Spring fair, but open to the public as well. So far we have made candles, jewelry, stationery and we are presently working with clay. It is a very interesting and fun club to join. It is open to all A.H.S. students.

Arlington's '73 Soccer Team was an enthusiastic, hard working team that played against stiff opposition in the powerful Suburban League.

One hundred percent effort was the only type of response that the '73 team gave all season. Sometimes it was enough to win, sometimes it wasn't. However one hundred percent was the constant trade mark and distinguishing characteristic of the '73 squad. That's all any coach can ask for and really be happy with.

Arlington's coach had a happy and satisfying season and a certain corner of his memory will be a constant storehouse for fond remembrances in regard to the entire '73 Soccer Team.

Best Wishes and continued success to the graduating members of the '73 Soccer Team.

The four years that we have devoted to working to create the perfect production has not gone by without its rewards. We must never forget that unity among a cast is, in its entirety, the foundation for the perfect production.

In the '70-71 season, our first show was a play by Thornton Wilder, The Skin of Our Teeth. In that show, we all learned about theatre from our talented director, Mr. Frank Roberts.

Later in that year, the club provided an evening of one-act plays, including The Typist, Crawling Arnold, and The White House Murder Case. The play that we entered into competition that year was The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie.

In the fall of 1972, the Drama Club presented the comedy Harvey. Later that year, we presented for the Drama Festival, an original comedy by Mr. Peter Filichia entitled Culture Vulture. This play won the top spot in the Regional Festival and went on to perform at the State Drama Festival in Boston.

The most dramatic play that we have ever performed, The Diary of Anne Frank, was presented in the fall of '72. This play was the first of two of the most emotional and meaningful shows done that year. The other equally moving show was another original play written by Mr. Filichia, called Games. This show won many awards for excellence in directing, acting and other aspects of production. Games first won at the Regional Drama Festival, and went on to sweep all the honors and awards at the State Semi-Final Drama Festival.

When the entire cast of Games was chosen to be among the All-State Cast, it was the first time in the history of the Drama Guild and the State Drama Festival that such an event had occurred.

From Boston, the cast of Games moved on to Rhode Island to perform in the New England Drama Festival in which we again received the rating of "Excellent" for our performance.

This year, the club is entering the Festival with another Filichia original, Danish Modern, a satirical view of some contemporary issues. Under the direction of Mr. Roberts, we know that we will be able to again experience the many aspects of the theatre to produce that unity which is necessary to the success of any show.

To the Cross Country Seniors,

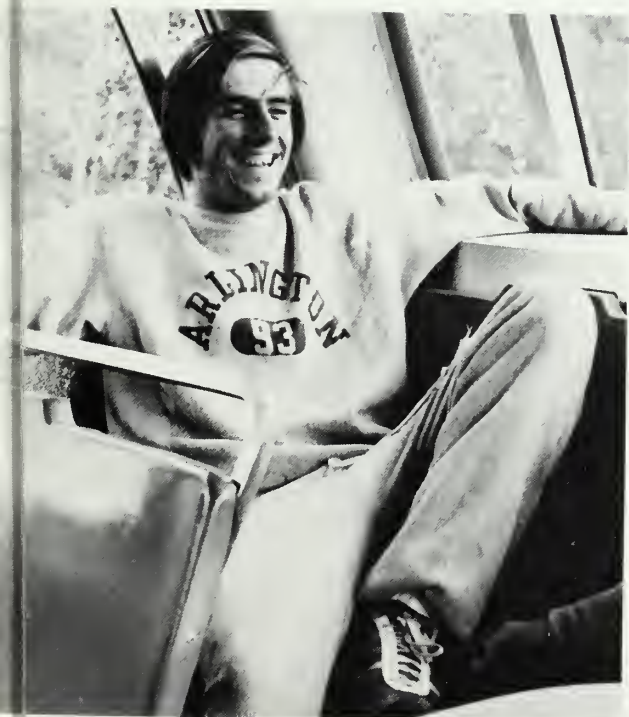

Although the wins were few and the losses many the tireless hours of practice over the steep and lengthy hills of Arlington will long be remembered by all of you in years to come.

It might seem to have been all in vain but those moans and groans that came forth as one climbed Ridgefield Road down Cutter Hill Ave. and then the tortuous route up Heart Break Hill will always serve as a reminder of what cross country meant to you.

It served a three-fold purpose: to relieve the stored up physical energy, to build a healthier body, to be a participant in a varsity competitive sport.

Universities and colleges await your arrival next fall. I trust that each of you will continue along the path of academic excellence and have a lengthy, successful and happy life.

A NEW TEAM 73-74

Can I convince this team that they are better than last year? Can they be convinced to work to their utmost and never let up? Can they be convinced that it is attention to detail that produces the quality performance? Will they believe that to be a class person in all they do has a direct relationship to their class on a basketball court? Will they be able to handle the change in format from slow and deliberate to "move it, man, move it?"

3 and 0, a good start--Loss to Rindge--mental errors--Eight straight, 11 and 1--Outstanding performances on the floor by everyone.

Injuries--sickness--poor shooting--beautiful defense, a credit to any team at any level.

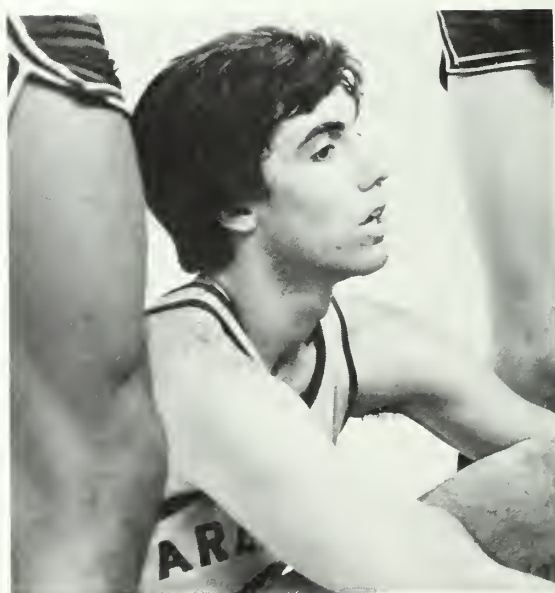

Made the tourney for the second straight year. Onward and upward. A good draw--more sickness and injuries--semifinals at the gardens--supershotter from Bosco and it's over.

17 wins--6 losses, best record ever. But still the tears, the sadness. I feel so bad for the seniors; that they will not know the joy of the final year-end victory, that the final loss will obliterate the incredible feats they performed all year, and that they probably will not realize what a fabulous job they did promoting Arlington High Basketball.

But I know and I thank them for their great effort, long hours every day, Saturday mornings, vacations, and putting up with the coach. So Tommy, Bobby, Billy, Jerry, Steve, Billy, Danny, and Dave, I am filled with sadness to see you leave. Though perhaps only here for a year, you became a part of me and I of you. I am the better for our association, only I hope to have given you something other than basketball knowledge. Who will ever forget the Newton game and the "hit the ceiling defense?" That is the team I knew in 73-74--an incredible group. See you at the basketball games--Alumni.

Winter Survival ... stripped my human characteristics from me. I was once more an animal fighting for existence in the forest. Prior to the start of this year's gymnastics season I was very reserved in my expectations of what this year's team could do. With only eight boys returning from last year's team, inexperience appeared to be a key factor. But once we started to work out, I could see a high level of enthusiasm and a desire to excel. A good group of freshmen reported, with the idea that they were good enough to compete; coincidentally demanding more work from the upper classmen. This developed into a healthy attitude of self-progress and teamwork, which prevailed throughout the season.

Many times during the season we established goals for ourselves, and more times than not these goals were surpassed. This was only possible because of the type of team-members we had. The boys were anxious to learn and were willing to work long and hard to achieve their goals. From time to time the team needed a lift, and each time someone different would do it. I enjoyed being associated with the team, and I see nothing but greater achievement and more success for all the boys who continue to retain this attitude.

One of the best AHS hockey teams to date was put down to defeat in the quarter-final rounds of the tourney by a determined South Boston squad. Gary, normally the first one out of the locker room, still wore remnants of his protective gear, not outwardly showing the effects of the game, but still showing the inner pain which was reproduced on the faces of every member of the team ... But this disappointment is the surprise reaction to the sudden end of a fabulous season. Big wins over South Weymouth and Brockton, five tourney triumphs, justified the vision of another E MASS championship which truly belongs in Arlington. We could say "Wait till next year," but for the seniors there waits for us at a variety of different colleges. Undoubtedly there will never be a better coached, better disciplined team in any college or high school than that of AHS in 73-74.

DANISH MODERN

Arlington High's 1974 entry to the Massachusetts Drama Festival was Danish Modern. A comedy based on Shakespeare's Hamlet, Danish Modern was the third award winning play written for the Drama Club by Peter Filicia. This year's cast proved itself equal to the capable talent which is noted each year. Frank Roberts, speech and drama teacher, directed the production. The Boston Globe Regional Drama Festival was hosted by Arlington in March. Danish Modern won this competition and six cast members who were recognized for their acting ability received awards. They were Steven Aznavourian, Joe Daisy, Jan Harding, Dorothy Healy, Valerie Johnson, and Lorena Sweetland. Seniors in the production were Laura Bonnell, Paul Dooley, John Farnum, Wendy Sue Muello, Betsy Quigley, and Danny Shea. The stage manager was Albert Oster.

I guess it doesn't pay to take life too seriously.

Ziggy

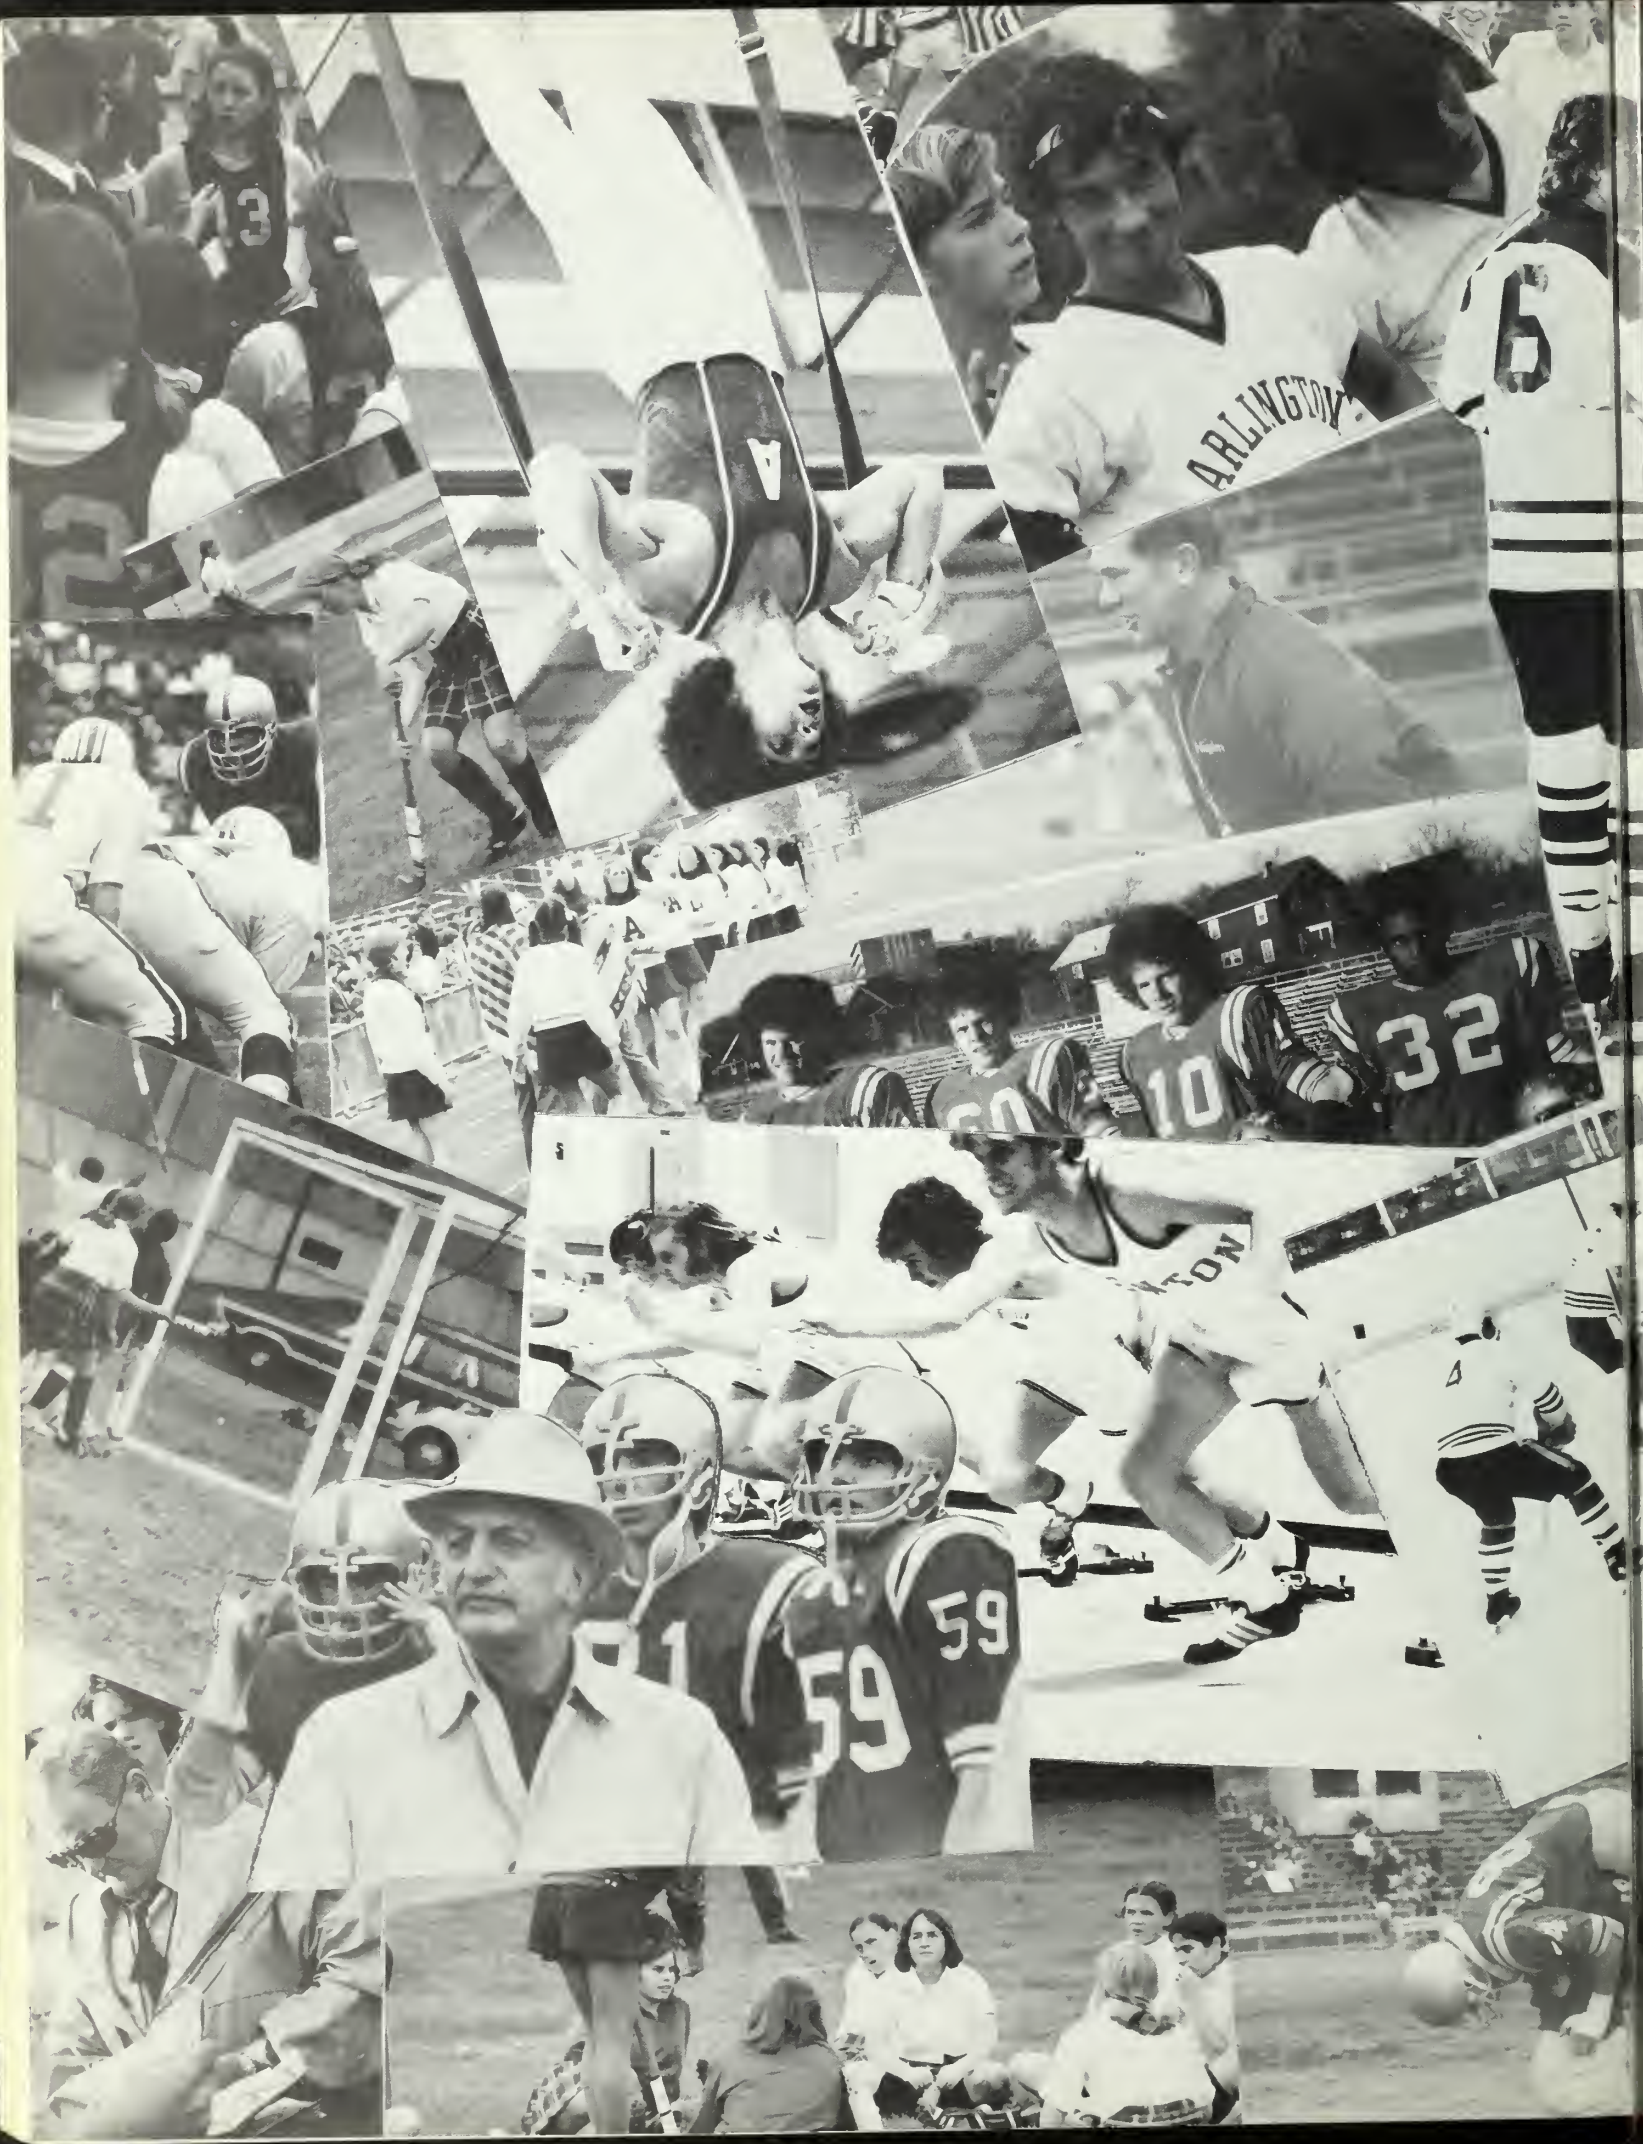

Life is a puzzle and a whirl . . .
Ralph Waldo Emerson

Common sense is not so common.
Voltaire

We are always on the brink of an ocean of thought into which we do not yet swim.

Ralph Waldo Emerson

*A wise man has eyes in his head while a fool
walks in darkness.
Old Testament*

When I see my friend after a long time, my first question is, Has anything become clear to you?

Ralph Waldo Emerson

The world is a looking-glass and gives back to every man the reflection of his own face.

William Makepeace Thackeray

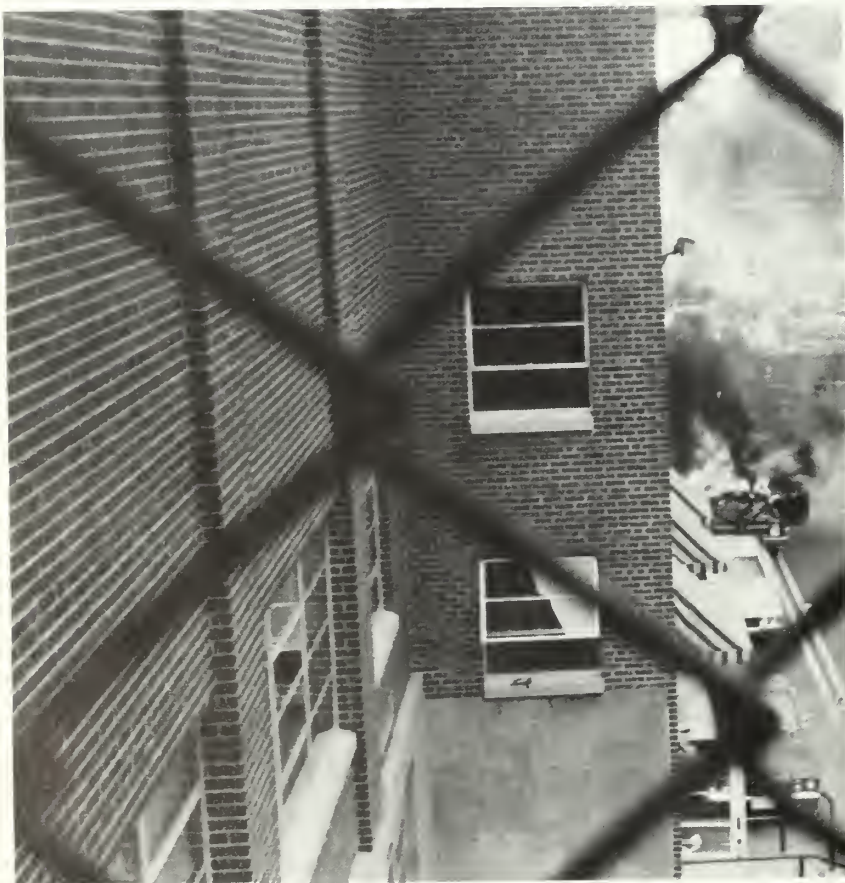

When the time comes each takes his flight.
Carl Sandburg

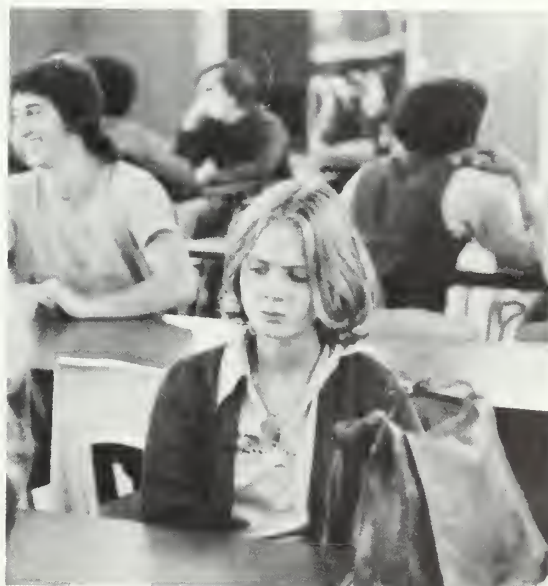

*For life goes not backward
nor tarries with yesterday*

Kahlil Gibran

*There will be time to wonder,
"Do I dare?"*
T. S. Eliot

Socrates never wrote anything.

Not in stone, nor on wax, nor on papyrus, nor with a reed.
Not one word. He chose not to.

He had learned not to take himself seriously. He knew the folly of pretending to be wise because only God is wise. He could not pretend to know. So he discussed and listened and, most of all, asked questions. Always questions.

He said that a life spent without asking questions about who we are, what is best for us to do, what we owe each other--such a life is not worth living.

If Socrates had spent the time putting down what he thought he knew, he would have stopped asking questions. If only for that moment, no questions.

Socrates never wrote anything.

Ralph McElearney

Man, unlike any other thing organic or inorganic in the universe, grows beyond his work, walks up the stairs of his concepts, emerges ahead of his accomplishments.

John Steinbeck

Tomorrow you will have a much more difficult piece to play, tomorrow when the audience is beginning to listen for wrong notes and you will no longer have us in the wings, then we will see what you really can do.
